YOUR BENEFITS CONNECTION

GovBenefits.gov is a partnership of Federal agencies with a shared vision – to provide improved, personalized access to government assistance programs with the aim of:

*Using the internet to connect citizens to government benefit program eligibility information

*Increasing access to information, particularly for people with disabilities

*Reducing expense and difficulty of doing business with the government

*Continuing to add programs to become the single source for Federal, state, and local government benefit programs

GovBenefits.gov can help visitors determine if there are government benefits available to them. The online screening tool is free, easy-to-use, and completely confidential. Names, phone numbers, Social Security numbers, or any other information that could be used to identify you are not required to use the tool. Visitors to the site answer a series of questions about themselves, and then it returns a list of government benefit programs the individual may be eligible to receive along with information about how to apply.

Whether it's a direct payment, loan, insurance, training, or other services; there may be something to help you.

PHYSICAL DISABILITY PARKING

In January of 2000, the Oklahoma Department of Public Safety stopped issuing permanent disability parking placards. Letters were sent out informing placard holders of the new change. If you are still using one of these, you will be fined as they are no longer valid.

The city of McAlester's fine is $150 plus a $30 court cost. Please check yours for the expiration date to make certain it is current. If not, contact OIL for an application. In June of 2008, they stopped charging the $1 renewal fee for disability parking placards.

*Please remember that if the person with the disability is only a passenger in the car and not entering or exiting the vehicle, it is illegal to park in the designated space.

A truck driver tucked this note under the windshield wiper of his automobile. "I've circled the block for 20 minutes, I'm late for an appointment and if I don't park here, I'll lose my job. Forgive us of our trespasses."

When he came back, he found a parking ticket and this note: "I've circled this block for 20 years and if I don't give you a ticket, I'll lose my job. Lead us not into temptation."

LEARN THE SIGNS, ACT EARLY

From birth to 5 years, your child should reach milestones in how she/he plays, learns, speaks, and acts. A delay in any of these areas could be a sign of a developmental problem, even autism. The good news is, the earlier it is recognized the more you can do to help your child reach their full potential. To learn more about some types of developmental disabilities such as autism spectrum disorders, cerebral palsy, vision loss, hearing loss, intellectual disabilities, AD/HD disorders, fetal alcohol syndrome, go to www.cdc.gov. Here you can find milestone charts you can check to know what your child should be doing at birth through age 5. For example, if you were to click on age 3 you would see this;

Important Milestones: By the End of Three Years

Children develop at their own pace, so it's impossible to tell exactly when yours will learn a given skill. The developmental milestones below will give you a general idea of the changes you can expect as your child gets older, but don't be alarmed if your child takes a slightly different course.
